

Lunch and Learn

Join us for our October presentation!

Our guest speakers this month:

Meg Kimmel is the Executive Vice President & Chief Strategy Officer of the Maryland Food Bank (MFB), and a certified fundraising executive with 20 years' experience in creating lasting, attention-getting programs and campaigns. At MFB, she is focused on testing innovative approaches to building a stronger food system and developing long term food security, and has raised over $250M in public & private funds to support its work delivering nutritious food and effective programs to Maryland's diverse communities. While her experience includes quite a bit of time in the corporate sector, Meg is happiest when working to drive change on critical issues like women's rights, food insecurity, and the environment. She invites everyone attending to connect with her on LinkedIn!

Carmen Del Guercio guides the vision and leads the daily operations of the MFB as President and CEO. The son of Italian immigrant factory workers, Carmen always had enough food on the table - but as an adult, realized that his family, like so many others, was just one event away from food insecurity. After learning how widespread the issue of hunger is in Maryland, he felt compelled to help fulfill the MFB's mission, joining in 2016 after a successful 29-year career in the banking industry. Today, Carmen leads the Food Bank in an ambitious new push to not only feed more people, but also offer solutions to address the root causes of food insecurity. Outside of the office, you can find him enjoying local sports teams, spending time with his wife and three daughters on Delmarva beaches, or traveling.

WHAT THEY'RE TALKING ABOUT

An overview of the Maryland Food Bank, and a deeper look into its programs & strategies

The MFB's mission to feed people, strengthen communities, and end hunger for Marylanders has led to numerous partnerships and programs since its inception in 1970. As the East Coast's first food bank, it's led the way in development of awareness campaigns, community hunger programs, and research on the issue of hunger and how to address it. Attendees of this session will get a deeper look into the MFB - especially those programs that align with the FSRC's priorities, objectives, and goals. See you there!
